COVID-19 Update: New Case Numbers Continue to Decline in Prince George's County

Dear Prince Georgians:

As we continue confronting the COVID-19 pandemic together, I want to provide you with the latest updates for Prince George's County. Due to the hard work and sacrifices of Prince Georgians, our new COVID-19 case numbers continue to decline in the County, allowing us to continue looking forward to ensuring that our County emerges from this pandemic stronger than we've ever been before.

Since March, over 19,900 residents have tested positive for this virus, and unfortunately 696 Prince Georgians have lost their lives. We continue to pray for all those who have been impacted by this virus. At the same time, we are encouraged by our progress, as many residents have made a full recovery from this illness.

In terms of testing, we have increased our testing capacity to around 10,000 residents per week countywide, with the capacity to test more as needed. We are also planning to open an additional testing location at the Leonard Dyer Regional Health Center in Clinton, which will provide more access to testing for our residents in south County.

I am happy to share with you that we have made tremendous progress in our collective efforts to slow the spread of this virus in our community. Our COVID-19 positivity rate for the week of June 28 is down to 6.8%. That is a significant drop from our high of 43% the week of April 19. In addition, we only had 451 new cases for the week of June 28, which is a continued decline from our high of 2,423 new cases the week of April 26.

I want to commend Prince Georgians for following the guidance of our public health officials, because the actions we have taken as a County Government and as a community have helped flatten the curve in Prince George's County. Due to our collective efforts, Prince George's County has gone from having one of the highest infection rates in the State to being below the State average.

At this time, Prince George's County is in a strong position for our recovery. Several weeks ago, I started the Prince George's Forward Task Force, which will ensure that we are forward thinking and continuously looking to find opportunities through lessons learned during this pandemic as we recover. The Task Force is a group of experts in public health, business, government and other areas that will provide well-reasoned recommendations on how the County should deal with this pandemic going forward. This group will present their first set of recommendations to me around August 1, 2020.

As we look toward recovery, I am excited to say that the economic outlook in Prince George's is improving. Projects across our County continue to move forward, such as the University of Maryland Capital Region Medical Center in Largo and the new Towne Square development in Suitland.

Additionally, we are excited to announce that Amazon has signed leases to bring two last mile delivery stations to the County. One last mile facility will be located in an industrial area on Prince George's Blvd. in Upper Marlboro, and the other will be in an industrial park on Willow Dale Rd. in Lanham. These facilities will create hundreds of full-time and part-time jobs paying a minimum of $15 per hour and benefits. The delivery stations also offer entrepreneurs the opportunity to build their own business delivering Amazon packages, as well as independent contractors the flexibility to create their own schedule for delivering for Amazon Flex.

While Amazon is bringing these facilities to our County, they have also already made a commitment to our community. Last month, they announced that they will bring their Amazon Future Engineer program to 132 Prince George's County public schools. This computer science program is expected to benefit more than 49,000 PGCPs students. All of these new and continuing projects show that our County is well-positioned for a strong recovery.

Another key component of our recovery will be the restoration of certain County Government services for our residents. We have been open for business since the pandemic began, but we have changed the way that business is done by offering a number of County services virtually. At this time, we are making changes to our facilities so we can bring some employees back from teleworking. We are making social distance preparations, marking our buildings, placing screens, and requiring masks to help keep these employees safe. As we bring some employees back and are able to restore certain services, we will be sure to keep our community updated.

Finally, I want to provide some key updates to the community on our Police Department. As you know, we are in the midst of a national search for a new police chief. We've retained the services of a preeminent public sector executive search firm to assist us in a national search for a new chief. This firm is highly skilled at engaging with the community, and they are known for their transparent search process.

We are conducting a thorough nationwide search, and the process will include input from internal stakeholders and the community. We will organize stakeholder meetings to gather input, both internally and externally. We will also put together a community survey to gather input from our entire community. When we are ready to launch that survey, we will be sure to share a link and provide ample time for responses.

I also announced last week that we have put together a Police Reform Commission. The Commission is made up of community advocates and public officials with relevant specialties and backgrounds on the issues of policing and police reform, and it will be co-chaired by Retired Prince George's County Circuit Court Judge Maureen Lamasney and Delegate Alonzo Washington.

We have made important strides together as a community to build a responsive, transparent and accountable police department, but we realize that there is still more work to be done. After a comprehensive study and review of the Police Department, the Commission will create a recommendation report that I will receive no later than October 30, 2020. They will also provide valuable insight on our search for a new police chief. I am confident that this Commission will help our Police Department truly become a model for the nation.

These past few months have been difficult, but now is the time for us to look forward. COVID-19 is not finished and we must all continue do our part to reduce the spread of the virus. At the same time, the work we've done to stop COVID-19 has paid off, and I want to thank all of our residents for continuing to do their part. I am truly excited about the future of Prince George's County, because we are the Crown Jewel of Maryland.

Yours in service,

Angela Alsobrooks

DPIE IT Modernization on the Horizon to Improve Customer Experience

IT Supervisor Ed Hall works remotely on application upgrades, maintenance projects and hardware/software repair issues.

As DPIE celebrates its seventh anniversary this month, Director Melinda Bolling has challenged the agency's IT leadership to transform and modernize operations and business systems. The modernization program will consist of upgrading the agency's business systems for:

- Application submission and plan review
- Records and data management
- Customer complaints and services
- Building and business compliance
- Small business and community outreach
- Administrative hearings and boards and commissions

Transforming the way DPIE conducts business by updating business systems, introducing innovative tools, and changing business processes to fit the department's current and future goals will allow the agency to continue to fulfill the County Executive's commitment to effective customer service delivery.

Prince George's County Featured in Upcoming BET Short Film Series

BET.COM

BET Her: Kim Fields, Sheryl Lee Ralph And More To Direct Short Films

We are excited about an upcoming series of short films that will air on BET, as they show the burgeoning film industry in Prince George's County. Prince Georgian Tressa Azarel Smallwood, a producer, assisted the directors of BET's Her Film Stories. All of these films were shot in the County, with our very own Prince George's Arts & Humanities Council helping secure the locations. They also worked to find local artists to create sets for the films, as well as local crews to help film. We know that Prince George's County has it all – location, talent, creativity – and we are definitely Prince George's Proud of all of our local residents who contributed to these films. We are excited to watch them when the first set premieres on July 25. Learn more here.
